Yesterday morning Mr. McDuffle received a rose from the centre of the board with telegram from his mother-in-law, dated Flatbush, which said:

"My Darling—What can I say? Can you forgive me? Your mother has killed you. I am here and safe. I would come back but for confinement."
It was soon after getting this telegram that McDuffle received the message from Red Bank that his mother had returned.

Tose from the centre of the board with the confinement was suigar model of the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, on which Mr. Regan and his family are to sail. Then one of the substituted menu cards was shown to Mr. Regan, and these read: "Dinner tendered to Mr. James B. Regan by his friends on the eve of his departure for Europe." Light dawned on Regan as he was forced into the floral chair and became the chief guest of the evening. "My Darling—What can I say? Can you forgive me? Your mother has killed you. I am here and safe. I would come back but for confinement."

"MOTHER."
